Dr Stephen Cave

Director of the Institute for Technology and Humanity, University of Cambridge

Stephen Cave is Director of the Institute for Technology and Humanity at the University of Cambridge. He is also Academic Director of the Leverhulme Centre for the Future of Intelligence, which is one of three research centres within the new Institute.

His research focuses on philosophy and ethics of technology, particularly AI, robotics and life-extension. He is the author of Immortality (Crown, 2012), a New Scientist book of the year, and Should We Choose To Live Forever (Routledge, 2023); and co-editor of AI Narratives (OUP, 2020), Feminist AI (OUP, 2023) and Imagining AI (OUP, 2023).

He writes widely about philosophy, technology and society, including for the Guardian and Atlantic. He also advises governments around the world, and has served as a British diplomat.